

Terri Ingram
Instrumental Music Teacher
terri.ingram@libertytechcharter.org

Elated to be the Instrumental Music teacher at LTCS, Terri Ingram enjoys teaching her students about the world of music, not just how to play their instruments. She began piano at the young age of 4 when she had mastered playing her older sister's lesson music, played the flute through elementary school, and switched in middle school to what would become her primary instrument, the French Horn. Growing up in the Washington, DC area allowed her the opportunity to study under and play with members of the National Symphony Orchestra, which led her to the Tanglewood Institute of Music where she studied under the Empire Brass Quintet, members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Leonard Bernstein.

Mrs. Ingram began her collegiate studies at Boston University's School of Fine Arts, where she found herself in a worldly environment she was not comfortable in. She transferred for her final 3 years of study to The Catholic University of American in Washington, DC, where she earned a Bachelor's of Fine Arts Performance.

Mrs. Ingram has retired from 22 years of being a stay at home mom and is enjoying this new season. She resides in Brooks with her husband of 24 years, and 4/5 of their children in a still-in-progress fixer-upper farmhouse. Terri plays the horn in her spare time for the Atlanta Praise Choir and Orchestra, and is an adjunct teacher at Point University teaching horn.

Mrs. Ingram enjoys eating healthy, hot tea, the Bible, and loving on those around her, especially her grandson, Ford!
